During the month of September we celebrate diversity with two main activities. The first, Colombia's participation in the Intercultural Week, in which it will participate with documentaries, art and dance. The second, the inauguration of the Nueva Fotografía Iberoamericana exhibition, in which the Colombian photographer, Javier Vanegas, together with 26 more artists will be exhibited. We will also share our artists' activities.

Colombia's participation in the Intercultural Week in Vienna

The Long Nights of Interculturality, an annual public event patronized by UNESCO, celebrates Vienna's diversity through music, food, art, cinema, traditional costumes, debates and many more activities worth discovering. The event's main objective is to shine a light on different cultural expressions and their value: www.icdo.at

Virtual Art Exposition "Art, Peace, Sustainability"

Colombia will take part through UNIBIRDS, from the Colombian Sergio Mantilla and Miguel Chaparro. These two artists through an investigation in collaboration with the Alexander von Humboldt institute created UNIBIRDS, which combines analogic (print) and digital (Mix technique + AR) technologies used to discover Colombia's biodiversity through birds. Their colours, textures, details and behaviour are turned into sources of information to be observed interactively.

The exhibition will be inaugurated on Thursday 16th September at 6:30 pm and can be visited until October 17th in the Palais Wiener von Welter.

In representation of Colombia, there will be exhibited the photographs of Javier Vanegas, which are part of his exposition WÜIN (meaning water in Wayuunaiki, mother tongue of the colombian Wayúu indigenous community). Vanegas captures the Guajiran landscape, the merge between the desert and the sea, the blue sky of the warm days of the region. Through his photographs, he tries to raise awareness of climate change.

The exhibition Nueva Fotografía is organized by the Club IberoAmericano Viena (CIAV), made up of countries from North, Central and South America and the Caribbean as well as Andorra, Spain, Portugal and the Instituto Cervantes, aiming to promote more visibility of Ibero-America in Austria.

This exhibition presents the creativity and views of Ibero-American countries. The pictures reflect the different realities, cultures and blend of the countries from different continents as well as their similarities.

The exhibition Nueva Fotografía is conformed by 36 pictures by 27 contemporary artists from 17 different countries.
